Express Driver and Policeman
Bruised in Wild Dash of Horse on Milk Street

Thumping to a feed bucket, Driver James Ebel of Mahoney's Canteen Express Company, and Policeman Patrick Conroy of the Court Square station, were dragged forty feet today when a horse of the above company, frightened at the back of an automobile, started to run from in front of No. 225 Milk street.

With Ebel hanging from the bucket, the animal dashed through traffic, along to India street. Three Policemen Conroy seized the bucket. The two men were dragged to Silver street, then thrown violently to the street.

Weather was seriously hurt, although both were bruised and shaken up. Ebel lives on East Fifth street, South Boston.

The Friendly Glow

DURING the last two years we have been asking for suggestions for the improvement of Edison service.

In that time we have received not more than a dozen letters of criticism, and hundreds of letters of commendation.

We feel, however, that the public should know us better, and to that end the "Friendly Glow" advertisements now will tell more of the story of our Company as a public utility, and the part it plays in the growth of Greater Boston.

Fresh From Paris Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

CALLOT winds a breadth of satin about a slender, dark-haired woman and calls it a gown—when it is really a stroke of genius. The satin is black and lustrous, and where it is collected in a full short drapery over one hip a cluster of lipstick red flowers are posed. The sleeves are more gossamer wings of black tulle, falling from narrow black satin bands above the elbows.

A FORMAL evening gown of silver lace and black tulle is given an exotic touch when it rises to a band of glossy tulle fur about the throat. The shoulders and almost the entire back and the arms are draped with the tulle. A great deal of richness over one hip is balanced by a broad, dignified train falling from a pearl and silver buckle at the opposite side of the skirt, and both skirt and train are edged with the tulle fur.

GAVE HUSBAND CHANCE TWICE, 'NEVER AGAIN'

Hazel Statira, Suing for Divorce, Tells of Strange Proposals

"Never again," said piquant Hazel Statira, who held her right hand aloft and snapped a sharply drawn finger.

"We've had a Fingering sort of marriage. One of those again, off again, go again things. But I'm through now. I'm cured. Charles Chaplin in 'The Dog's Life' had nothing on me."

Hazel, whose name describes her big eyes, is suing her husband, George Statira, for divorce. She charges cruel and abusive treatment. On two occasions since their marriage in 1913 divorce proceedings were started and then abandoned. They became reconciled.

"I have no more," said Hazel in the terror of her mother's home at No. 215 Tremont street. "George was insanely jealous of me. I had a close life. Every time we were about to be divorced he came around and begged me to take him back. He even cried and made all sorts of promises. I gave him a chance. Twice I did and each time he failed. We no longer get along. I am not a woman who is easily settled again but hanging on I start something."

Jealousy, always jealous. He'd accuse me of having other men and then refuse to support me. Where, I thought, one thing after another. But I'm through now. Never again. There'll be no third reconciliation."

In Superior Court the twenty-three-year-old girl was awarded counsel fees and temporary alimony pending the hearing of her petition for divorce. It was a case of love at first sight for George, she said. "He started going me wonderful promises. He told me I was engaged, but that made no difference. He'd propose over an arrow of hallowed brown potatoes in the kitchen. He'd tell me, 'I know, I know, I'm sorry, speaking of marriage.'"

"Well, they drafted my sweetheart, and George got in his head. He was while Honeybunch was in France he worked fast. He proposed in that hotel kitchen at breakfast, lunch and dinner. The Germans were going ahead then, so I wasn't sure that my sweetie would ever see Boston again. One day I had a weak moment and mumbled 'Yes.'"

MINERS TELL OF FASCISTI TAKE PRICES PAID FOR COAL

Say Public Is Forced to Pay in Some Cases Up to $12 a Ton Over the Labor Cost

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 4.—(By International News Service.)—Declaring the wage scale of the anthracite miners was not inflated and that the government had "expressly said so in the award which is the basis of the present agreement," which expires on April 1, a statement issued here today by a committee representing the anthracite miners asserted the miners were not contributing for a large living wage but for a "living wage and a wage commensurate with the demand of the industry."

The statement attacked the move by the operators to force a cut in hard coal for lowering wages.

"The operators very suitably avoid any reference to reduction of a substantial nature in the matter of their own profits, profits of the railroads, profits of the coal sales companies, the royalty tanners and distributing agents."

"The operators fix the labor cost of a ton of anthracite coal at $5.92 and they receive wholesale at $6.80, $6.85 for soft coal, $7.35 for stove coal, $7.85 for nut coal, and $7.60 for egg coal. People in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere in the anthracite consuming territory pay as high as $14 a ton for coal. It is $12 a ton over the labor cost of $12.02."

"Therefore a more substantial reduction can be made in the cost of coal by a cut in the profits made above the $12 labor cost, quoted by the operators."

The statement declared "the cost of anthracite coal can never be figured in dollars and cents," owing to the hazardous mining work, which took more than 600 lives and injured 20,000 workers last year.

Boston has a $50 per week job that nobody wants. At least that is the conclusion reached by Luke E. Shields, director of the city unemployment bureau at City Hall, appointed by Mayor Curley to aid in the lessening of the misery situation of the city and relieve a serious situation.

Mr. Shields has had such a place on his hands for three days and not only has no one applied for it, but he has found among the applicants for work no one with qualifications to fill the job.

Among other things, with "the posting of non-beverage alcohol on forged permits and without permits to purchase."

FACTS, FADS AND FASHIONS OF BOSTON'S STAGE AND ELSEWHERE

A ROGUSH ROSE—With a Dash o' Green! Gertrude Murphy, talented member of the "Irish Players," who, beginning Monday, will present "The White-Headed Boy" at the Hollis Street Theatre. Lennox Robinson wrote the piece. Don't forget what the Irish theatre has done for the drama!

FLORENCE JOHNS had little trouble in working her way into the hearts of Boston drama patrons, and her host of friends, as the leading lady of the Arlington Players, is steadily growing.

A LILY FROM "LILIUM"! Miss Hortense Alden, comely of face and easy of manner, is the young woman who plays the pretty servant girl in "Lilium" at the Wilbur, that strange Hungarian drama of earth and heaven.

WHAT COULD BE SWEETER? These cuties are some of Mollie Williams' hand-picked chorus girls who grace her big show, due at the Gaiety on Monday. Here's a case where fine feathers aren't necessary to make fine birds. Stroll down that way and judge for yourself.

A CHARACTER STUDY! George Arliss came to America not so many years ago without the benefit of welcoming tea-tosses. Through sheer artistry he is today one of the best known actors mummifying in the United States. For one of the reasons go see him in "The Green Goddess" at the Plymouth. He is pictured above as the rajah.

WATER, WATER, EVERYWHERE, ETC. Berlin is in the throes of one of the worst general strikes in the history of the German capital. Citizens are forced to get their own water from municipal hydrants. Photo shows the line-up at the "taps pump." (Wide World.)

STEAMING OUT SICK LUNGS! Cures and alleviating remedies for consumption and other diseases of the lungs have been tried with more or less success, but word comes from Paris that steam is being used to good advantage on "lung patients." Here is a photograph, taken in the treatment room of the "Inhalatorium," Paris, where the patients inhale steam through the mouth.

READY FOR A FROLIC! This striking sport costume is fashioned of white crepe silk with a jacket of coral green. (Underwood.)

FIGURATIVELY SPEAKING, Miss Gertrude Artelt of Philadelphia is creating some splash at Miami Beach, where she is enjoying. She finds very little difficulty in capturing most of the speed race at the resort. She is determined to keep in training for the championship ship dashes this Summer. (Underwood.)

SHE PAINTS, SHE DOES! Flora Martin, spouse of Bay City, Mich., practiced stenography until poor health compelled her to abandon her profession. Now she's taken up painting under "invisible direction." Here she is with one of her masterpieces, a "Portrait of a Dead Egyptian Queen." She says a spirit guides her hand.

DON'T CROWD, LADIES! Mrs. Mary Belle Spencer, public guardian of Cook County, Ill., has tossed her grey bonnet into the ring and has entered the race for Congressman-at-large to complete term of late Congressman William E. Mason. She is in favor of soldiers' houses. (International.)

LEADING A DOG'S LIFE IN TRUTH! These performing dogs, owned by Olga Lipinski of New York, earn much money for their owner. As they are single, it is incumbent upon them to pay an income tax. Tricks and tricks are their daily lot. Never having been a performing dog, we don't know anything about his hardships, but did you ever hear of the "Jack London Club"? (International.)

REV. FREDERICK BLOUNT BRANE, arch-deacon of the Yukon, who has returned to his home in Atlanta, Ga., with the news that the totem pole beliefs have practically disappeared in the North. (International.)

GLOUCESTER EXPECTS HARDING TO BE GUEST
 Gloucester, March 4.—President Harding is expected to be a guest of honor at the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Gloucester, to be held here in August, 1923. He has informed Congressman A. Platt Andrews of this district that he plans to attend the celebration, similar to the program given for the 175th anniversary. A special business stand will be located commemorating the occasion.

SCHOOL RECTOR MAY BECOME BISHOP

Rev. Samuel S. Drury of St. Paul's Seen as Possible Coadjutor of Episcopal Diocese

The Rev. Samuel S. Drury, rector of the exclusive St. Paul's School for Boys at Concord, N. H., is being mentioned in the local Episcopal diocese as a very possible choice for the office of bishop-coadjutor, which will be filled at a convention to be held in May.

The bishop-coadjutor will act as a helper and general assistant to Bishop Lawrence, and on the latter's death will automatically become bishop of the diocese.

Known for years as one of the most prominent ministers in the Episcopal diocese, the Rev. Drury recently drew a great deal of notice for refusing an offer to serve as rector of Trinity Church in New York, the largest and most influential Episcopal church in the country.

He took the stand that he could be of more genuine service at the school in New Hampshire, and arguments to induce him to reconsider his refusal were unavailing.

The office of bishop-coadjutor is at present vacant. At May's convention each church in the diocese will be represented by its rector and two laymen from its congregation. This convention will select the man who will eventually succeed Bishop Lawrence as head of the diocese.

At this stage of proceedings it is admitted too early to make any definite forecast as to the choice of the convention. That whenever the matter is mentioned in Episcopal circles, the name of Rev. Drury's name is given deep consideration.

Dr. Drury is a graduate of St. Paul's School, of the class of 1901. He has received a number of degrees, including his Harvard A. B. Berkeley Divinity School gave him his S. T. D. in 1917. Trinity College bestowed the degree of L. D. on him in 1919. In Dartmouth made him a Doctor of Divinity in 1921. The Episcopate gave him the same degree in 1921.

WOMEN IN FIGHT ON COHASSET 'REVELS'

Signers of Appeal to Have 'Wild Orgies' Halted Say Official Failed to Act

Citizens of Cohasset today received the mail on an appeal, signed by prominent Boston and Cohasset women, urging the voters at the March 5 election to "save the fair name of the town" from "wild orgies and drunken revels" in summer.

The names of the following women are on the appeal: Mrs. E. M. Smith, Mrs. E. M. Smith, Mrs. C. B. Clark, Miss May B. Bell and Mrs. Virginia C. Vogel.

All have beautiful summer homes in the Black Rock road and Jerusalem road sections of the town.

The women, in their appeal, charged that Ralph Mateo, who for nine years has served as selectman, assessor and overseer of the poor, has not acted when the alleged midnight summer games were brought to his attention.

Mateo will send a circular letter to all voters, denouncing the accusations made by the society women.

Barnes N. Tower, fifty-five years old, who was said to be the oldest man to vote in the United States army at the outbreak of the World War, was among the signers.

The first of the appeal issued by the five women is entitled at the head and chosen Club, at the town street, "Night after night in the summer" states the women's appeal, "shades of the women and the signs of men can be heard in and around Forest avenue."

"Ladies flow freely in Cohasset, the appeal continues, and the 'merry and swift from communions among the young people make this town their carnival ground."

The women ask that a new man be elected to the board of selectmen in June next so that he can induce the selectmen to better conditions.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY Two Private Performances by Harvard Dramatic Club

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

A "MUSIC" performance, especially for children, is being given this morning at the Emerson Theatre, by the arrangement of a group of prominent society matrons, headed by Mrs. Reed Eastbrook of Chestnut Hill. The affair is for the benefit of the Boston Children's Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dilbeck Curtis of Boston, who have taken a cottage for the season at Palm Beach, were among the guests recently entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman. Others in the company were Mr. and Mrs. Lolla E. Kaufman, Mrs. Frederick Elder, Mr. and Mrs. David Tenney and Mrs. Mitchell Henry.

Mrs. George Richmond Peering of Boston has arrived in New York, where she is stopping at the Ritz-Carlton. Mrs. Peering's name is constantly linked with numerous worthy charity causes.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt is expected to arrive today at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. Mrs. Vanderbilt will observe at the Southern resort for a visit of four weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, formerly of Boston, were among the prominent New York society folk who attended the performance of Rasky Korakova's "The House of the Metropolis" Opera House, with Lucerne Bori singing the role of the town maiden. With Mr. and Mrs. Putnam, who were occupying the box, were Mrs. H. K. Kuretsch and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gouverneur Morris.

The Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge will leave for the New Willard, Washington, about the middle of March, their son, John and Miss Coolidge. The boys will join their parents after the firing examinations at Mercersburg Academy, where they are enrolled as students.

MAN MISSING SINCE NOV. 12 IS SOUGHT

John Lees Left South End to Go to Newton and Dropped From Sight

John Lees, sixty-four years old, who resided at No. 10 Dore street, South End, started from his home on the morning of November 12, last, to go to Newton to buy some meat at a shop that he frequented there.

He never reached the shop, and has not since been seen.

At the time he left the lodging house he had only a dollar or so in his pockets. The only valuables he carried were a gold watch and an emerald and diamond earring. He had one relative in this country, a brother, John Dixon of Oak street, Newton Upper Falls. Dixon cannot imagine what has become of him.

His landlady, Mrs. J. Frank, who conducts the lodging house at the Lees he located. She has a considerable amount of property belonging to him, and announced to the Boston American that she is willing to pay a liberal reward to anyone who can give her information concerning him.

Lees is described as being five feet seven inches tall, light complexioned, with blue eyes, gray hair, partially bald and of medium weight. He wears a black suit and coat, and either a derby hat or a soft gray cap.

Miss Mary Bird is one of the most enthusiastic young riders at Aiken, S. C.

 BOTH the serious and the humorous drama will be represented at the private performance of two eminent plays when the Harvard Dramatic Club is giving for its patronesses and friends next Monday and Tuesday evenings. The two presentations will be given at Agassiz House, Radcliffe College, and both plays—"The Intruder" by Masterlinck, and "Pippa" by Stanley Houghton—will be given on each evening.

Coffee will be served after the performances, and among those invited to pour are Madeline A. Lawrence Lowell, George P. Baker, George Lyman Kittredge and Le Baron Briggs.

As everyone knows, there are few members of Boston's "four hundred" not allied in some way or another with Harvard University. Many indeed of the "first family" contingent may boast of Harvard men in their families ever since the college was founded back in 1779. How many Cabots, Appletons, Wicks, Coolidges or Bostons are there who have not received the coveted sashpin from the Institution since the Charter? Probably very few.

It is quite natural, therefore, that the women folk among Boston's smart set should take a keen interest in the hundred and one social activities connected with the college. And quite a number of Harvard affairs occupy red letter places on the social calendar. There is the Hasty Pudding Club's annual show, the Glee Club concert, class day, the Phi Eta show, commencement exercises, Junior "prom," and the Caroleo Carnival.

Not does the smart set lack representation in the Harvard Dramatic Club for included among the list of patronesses are some of the most prominent matrons of social world. They are Madeline A. Lawrence, Harcourt Amory, Hugh Bancroft, Walter C. Baylies, Maufred Bowditch, Edward D. Brandegee, Louis Chavannes, Algernon Coolidge, Gustav Cushman, Samuel Edick, Robert W. Simmons, and William C. Endicott, Jr., Charles H. Fiske, Allan Forbes, Reginald Foster, J. Livingston Grardin, Francis R. Hart, Norman F. Henselstein, Roger L. Lee, Alice M. Longwell, Amy Lowell, Woodard M. Minto, George H. Munroe, George A. Page, Charles Peabody, Joseph Quincy, Montgomery Rollins, F. W. Reynolds, Walter C. Sabin, Lawrence Sargent, Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., Francis R. Sears, William H. Stearns, T. Russell Sullivan, Alden A. Thorndike, and J. P. Whipple.

Speaking of sporting events at Southern resorts, there is considerable interest in the second annual golf tournament which will be played at White Sulphur Springs, West Va., on April 5, 7 and 8. Arrangements are being made to hold the Western Amateur championship there this summer, followed by the women's national championship tourney.

'DARK HORSE' TO COMPETE WITH BLUE NOSE

Schooner Being Built at Lunenburg to Enter Fishermen's Race Next Fall

Halifax, N. S., March 4.—The fishing schooner Blue Nose, winner of the 1911 international fishermen's championship trophy, will have a rival in the waters of September, when this year's race will be held.

It became known today that a "dark horse" is now building at Lunenburg to compete in the elimination race of Gloucester next September.

The international race will be held off Gloucester this year, probably in October.

It has become known here, also, that the American fishermen are having the schooner Puritan built at Essex, which they plan to enter in this year's race in an effort to wipe out the defeat of the Blue by the Black in last year's race.

Halifax enthusiasts are already discussing the attendance of a large contingent from here at the Gloucester race.

Found relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many times these tired, worn-out feelings and pains about the body are frequent troubles in my work and I am frequently forced to stop. I am especially anxious for just this condition. The good results are noted by the disappearance of symptoms passing away — one after another.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Woman's Medicine for Women's Ailments. Always reliable.

Captivating Laughter
